

Biography

Cheri Corbiere, RN, BScN.
Community Health Nurse – Panorama
First Nations and Inuit Health – Ontario Region

Cheri Corbiere is an Anishinabek Registered Nurse from Sheshegwaning First Nation. She is a graduate from Laurentian University in the North Eastern Ontario Collaborative Nursing Program - Cambrian Site.

Cheri has a very strong academic background in nursing and community health combined with 16 years of work experience in Aboriginal community health. She has worked in First Nations communities in various capacities including Community Health Representative, Health and Social Services Director, Community Health Nurse, and Children's Mental Health Case Manager. Additionally, Cheri has gained tremendous knowledge and experience in the areas of health education, health information systems, health research, health promotion and disease prevention initiatives while serving as a member of various local, regional, and national advisory committees and working groups.

Cheri's recent experience working with the First Nations Panorama Deployment in Ontario team is focused in the area of change management, business process redesign, tripartite governmental relations, and working effectively in an integrated project management team environment. She is currently enrolled in the Master of Public Health – Nursing at Lakehead University. Her long term goal is to pursue a PhD in rural and remote health to advance Indigenous health research. Cheri is honoured to represent Aboriginal nurses from Ontario and Quebec regions as board member for the Aboriginal Nurses Association of Canada.